WHAT DO WE DO NOW?

Every day, the headlines remind us that our world is moving farther away from Biblical truth. Nations once greatly influenced by Christianity are now embracing secularism, false religions, moral confusion, and philosophies that deny the saving power of Jesus Christ. In many places where churches once flourished, unbelief and indifference now prevail.

Here in America, we are witnessing a similar decline in morality and spiritual conviction. Dishonesty, rebellion, and immorality are increasingly accepted as normal. Many openly reject Biblical standards while embracing the mindset that life on earth is short and should be spent pursuing personal pleasure, success, and the so-called “American Dream,” rather than living sacrificially for the will and glory of God. This self-centered philosophy has led countless young people into lives without lasting purpose.

At the same time, many schools, media outlets, and cultural influences promote ideas that oppose the clear teachings of God’s Word. Our children and grandchildren are constantly exposed to messages that deny truth, weaken faith, and encourage compromise.

Yet amid the darkness, there is still hope — because God always has a faithful remnant. Across America and around the world, there are pastors who still preach the Bible without apology, missionaries who continue carrying the Gospel to the lost, churches that still stand for truth, and Christians who are faithfully witnessing to their neighbors, coworkers, and communities.

Many believers are praying earnestly for revival. Parents and grandparents are teaching their children the Scriptures. Soul winners are still handing out Gospel tracts. Young people are still surrendering their lives to serve Christ. God is still saving souls, changing lives, and building His Church.

This is not the time for Christians to retreat in fear or remain silent. This is the time to stand faithfully, lovingly, and courageously for the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The answer to the problems of our nation will never be found merely in politics, entertainment, or social reform. True hope is found only in Jesus Christ, whose precious blood was shed for the salvation of mankind.

At CLA, we must continue encouraging churches, pastors, missionaries, and believers everywhere to remain steadfast in proclaiming the Gospel and defending Biblical truth. The work of Christian education, publishing sound materials, supporting ministries, and strengthening local churches is more important now than ever before.

The CLA exists to encourage believers to stand firm in their faith, provide Christ-honoring resources, and promote the unchanging truth of God’s Word in a changing world. Through faithful churches and dedicated Christians working together, we can continue reaching souls and strengthening future generations for Christ.

The Apostle Paul declared in Romans 1:16, “For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.”

May we never become silent witnesses. The world desperately needs the truth of God’s Word, and the Lord has entrusted that message to us. Let us pray more fervently, witness more boldly, and stand more faithfully than ever before.

ENCOURAGEMENT:

Faithfulness in Both Calling and Care

In ministry, much of the focus is naturally placed on serving others—preaching, teaching, discipling, and reaching the community. Legal matters, policies, and documentation can sometimes feel like distractions from that calling rather than a part of it.

However, Scripture consistently reminds us that faithfulness is seen not only in the visible work of ministry, but also in the care and stewardship behind the scenes.

When a church takes time to clarify its leadership structure, it is not merely handling paperwork—it is protecting unity. When a ministry updates its policies, it is not simply meeting requirements—it is creating an environment where people can be served with consistency and integrity. When a believer seeks guidance before responding to a difficult situation, that person is not acting out of fear, but out of wisdom.

These quieter decisions often go unnoticed, but they play a significant role in sustaining long-term ministry.

We regularly hear from pastors and leaders who say, “I just want to do what’s right.” That desire is both simple and powerful. And in many cases, taking a thoughtful, informed approach to legal matters is part of living out that commitment.

It is also worth remembering that you are not alone in these situations. Many others are navigating similar questions—how to respond, how to prepare, and how to move forward in a way that honors both their faith and their responsibilities.

Approaching these matters with care does not weaken a ministry’s spiritual focus—it strengthens it. It removes unnecessary obstacles, reduces confusion, and allows leaders to move forward with confidence and peace.

In the end, legal stewardship is not separate from ministry—it supports it.

As you continue serving, we encourage you to view these responsibilities not as burdens, but as tools. With the right guidance and preparation, they can help preserve the work God has entrusted to you and allow it to continue for years to come.

Review Your Church Bylaws Regularly:

Church bylaws are not just formalities—they guide leadership decisions, voting procedures, and conflict resolution. If your bylaws are outdated or unclear, it can create confusion during critical moments. Reviewing them every few years helps ensure they still reflect how your church actually operates.

Keep Clear Boundaries for Facility Use:

If outside groups use your church building, a written facility use agreement is essential. It should outline expectations, responsibilities, and liability coverage. This helps protect the church while still allowing ministry opportunities.

Note: The Fundamentals of Church Bylaws includes facility use policies and other helpful information. Ministry Liability Release Forms is a helpful resource for outreaches and other ministry related events. Please, contact our offices with any specific questions.

Be Careful with Employment Classifications:

Misclassifying workers as independent contractors instead of employees can lead to significant legal and tax issues. When in doubt, review roles carefully—especially for administrative staff, teachers, or regular workers—to ensure proper classification.

Understand Zoning Before You Expand:

Before adding services, starting a school, or increasing building usage, check how your property is classified under local zoning laws. Even churches can face restrictions related to parking, occupancy limits, or traffic flow. Addressing these early can prevent complaints or enforcement actions later.

Note: How to Legally Start a Church does not specifically mention zoning, but can be a great stepping point when starting a ministry. Please, contact our offices with any specific zoning questions.
